

SATURDAY, MAY 11.

Advertisement by the Governor.

Robert C. Green, of Cincinnati, was appointed to Judge of the Circuit Court of the county of Allegany.

Alexander J. Hayes, to Judge of the District Court of the city and county of Lawrence.

George G. Brainerd, to be Judge of Domestic Dist. Court of the City of New York, and the town of Manistee, in the county of Manistee.

CHESTER COUNTY.

John W. Cunningham, Prothonotary and Clerk of Chester County, Over Tax Tressurer.

Nathaniel Stockwell, Register of Wills.

Robert Rabson, Recorder of Deeds.

George Fisher, Clerk of the Orphans' Court.

Appointed by the Attorney-General.

Robert P. Flanders, to be Deputy Attorney-General for Fayette County.

Book dividends for the last six months.

Commercial Bank, 4 pieces—Southwicks, 5 do.

Mechanics', 4 do—Philadelphia, 3 do.

Kensington, 5 do—Schuykill, 4 do.

Manches. & Mech's, 3 do.

Farmers & Merch., 4 do.

CHESAPEAKE AND DELAWARE CANAL.—During the week ending on Friday, there have passed over the canal from Philadelphia to Baltimore, 71 vessels, 165 tons.

Former report—993.

Whole number this season—1100.

Arrival of the Baltimore Railroad Line.—On Saturday at half past two o'clock.

On Sunday at twenty minutes past two.

On Monday at twenty minutes past two.

The railroad has now been completed to the short end; time of performances, 2 hours 30 minutes—distance travelled, 125 miles.

ARRIVAL OF THE PRISONERS.—At a meeting of the Inspectors of the Prison, held on Monday evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing six months:

President, Wm. H. Alexander.

Vice-President, Adam Woddy.

Secretary, James Hutchinson.

Keeper of the Walnut Street Prison, Anthony Fender.

Keeper of the Arch Street Prison, Jacob Reuter.

"All general Provocations," exclaimed the general, "the eyes are fast."

"And will bring the master to judgment, if not to respond," responded Hillman. "Then turning to Shamus, who had a look of concern on his face, he said, "The father of your country shudders at the sight of you, and you call him a son!"

"Shamus, then call thyself, then man of blood! where is thy wife, Maria, Hillman?"

But Shamus stood trembling, gazing with horror on the face before him. "Brentwood, then double murderer, where is my sister?" But no answer was given.

Shamus, in a more collected manner, said, "The mark of Cain is on there. But stay one moment, and see that the blood that ought to shed is in thy own—that young man is thy son."

The final appeal was too much for human nature, and Brentwood fell to the floor as if blasted by the lightning of heaven.

He lay dead, a veil over the scene that followed. The clouds of forgetfulness ought to have covered the meeting of a father and son under such circumstances. In a few moments, it was evident that the surgeon and nurse restored him to life and light—life and light which he shuddered. By the intercession of Hillman, he was saved from encountering a world where an executioner and judge would meet him in every human face. The fallen and crushed victim was carried to his chamber, and in the first moments after the terrible scene in the American camp,

"My soul, lead me as it is—so—oh! it is blotted out," exclaimed Brentwood.

"My sister," demanded Hillman.

"You come, all, family replied

"Oh! guilt—guilt—my unkindest destroyed one who would have been my guardian angel; but I did not, could not, do an act of personal violence to one so sweet, so undefended; but I hated them—I hated her—and my children—had it not been that surging remorse restrained him from life and light—life and light which he shuddered."

By the intercession of Hillman, he was saved from encountering a world where an executioner and judge would meet him in every human face. The fallen and crushed victim was carried to his chamber, and in the first moments after the terrible scene in the American camp,

"My soul, lead me as it is—so—oh! it is blotted out," exclaimed Brentwood.

"My sister," demanded Hillman.

"You come, all, family replied

"Oh! guilt—guilt—my unkindest destroyed one who would have been my guardian angel; but I did not, could not, do an act of personal violence to one so sweet, so undefended; but I hated them—I hated her—and my children—had it not been that surging remorse restrained him from life and light—life and light which he shuddered."

By the intercession of Hillman, he was saved from encountering a world where an executioner and judge would meet him in every human face. The fallen and crushed victim was carried to his chamber, and in the first moments after the terrible scene in the American camp,

"My soul, lead me as it is—so—oh! it is blotted out," exclaimed Brentwood.

"My sister," demanded Hillman.

"You come, all, family replied

"Oh! guilt—guilt—my unkindest destroyed one who would have been my guardian angel; but I did not, could not, do an act of personal violence to one so sweet, so undefended; but I hated them—I hated her—and my children—had it not been that surging remorse restrained him from life and light—life and light which he shuddered."

By the intercession of Hillman, he was saved from encountering a world where an executioner and judge would meet him in every human face. The fallen and crushed victim was carried to his chamber, and in the first moments after the terrible scene in the American camp,

"My soul, lead me as it is—so—oh! it is blotted out," exclaimed Brentwood.

"My sister," demanded Hillman.

"You come, all, family replied

"Oh! guilt—guilt—my unkindest destroyed one who would have been my guardian angel; but I did not, could not, do an act of personal violence to one so sweet, so undefended; but I hated them—I hated her—and my children—had it not been that surging remorse restrained him from life and light—life and light which he shuddered."

By the intercession of Hillman, he was saved from encountering a world where an executioner and judge would meet him in every human face. The fallen and crushed victim was carried to his chamber, and in the first moments after the terrible scene in the American camp,

"My soul, lead me as it is—so—oh! it is blotted out," exclaimed Brentwood.

"My sister," demanded Hillman.

"You come, all, family replied

"Oh! guilt—guilt—my unkindest destroyed one who would have been my guardian angel; but I did not, could not, do an act of personal violence to one so sweet, so undefended; but I hated them—I hated her—and my children—had it not been that surging remorse restrained him from life and light—life and light which he shuddered."

By the intercession of Hillman, he was saved from encountering a world where an executioner and judge would meet him in every human face. The fallen and crushed victim was carried to his chamber, and in the first moments after the terrible scene in the American camp,

"My soul, lead me as it is—so—oh! it is blotted out," exclaimed Brentwood.

"My sister," demanded Hillman.

"You come, all, family replied

"Oh! guilt—guilt—my unkindest destroyed one who would have been my guardian angel; but I did not, could not, do an act of personal violence to one so sweet, so undefended; but I hated them—I hated her—and my children—had it not been that surging remorse restrained him from life and light—life and light which he shuddered."

By the intercession of Hillman, he was saved from encountering a world where an executioner and judge would meet him in every human face. The fallen and crushed victim was carried to his chamber, and in the first moments after the terrible scene in the American camp,

"My soul, lead me as it is—so—oh! it is blotted out," exclaimed Brentwood.

"My sister," demanded Hillman.

"You come, all, family replied

"Oh! guilt—guilt—my unkindest destroyed one who would have been my guardian angel; but I did not, could not, do an act of personal violence to one so sweet, so undefended; but I hated them—I hated her—and my children—had it not been that surging remorse restrained him from life and light—life and light which he shuddered."

By the intercession of Hillman, he was saved from encountering a world where an executioner and judge would meet him in every human face. The fallen and crushed victim was carried to his chamber, and in the first moments after the terrible scene in the American camp,

"My soul, lead me as it is—so—oh! it is blotted out," exclaimed Brentwood.

"My sister," demanded Hillman.

"You come, all, family replied

"Oh! guilt—guilt—my unkindest destroyed one who would have been my guardian angel; but I did not, could not, do an act of personal violence to one so sweet, so undefended; but I hated them—I hated her—and my children—had it not been that surging remorse restrained him from life and light—life and light which he shuddered."

By the intercession of Hillman, he was saved from encountering a world where an executioner and judge would meet him in every human face. The fallen and crushed victim was carried to his chamber, and in the first moments after the terrible scene in the American camp,

"My soul, lead me as it is—so—oh! it is blotted out," exclaimed Brentwood.

"My sister," demanded Hillman.

"You come, all, family replied

"Oh! guilt—guilt—my unkindest destroyed one who would have been my guardian angel; but I did not, could not, do an act of personal violence to one so sweet, so undefended; but I hated them—I hated her—and my children—had it not been that surging remorse restrained him from life and light—life and light which he shuddered."

By the intercession of Hillman, he was saved from encountering a world where an executioner and judge would meet him in every human face. The fallen and crushed victim was carried to his chamber, and in the first moments after the terrible scene in the American camp,

"My soul, lead me as it is—so—oh! it is blotted out," exclaimed Brentwood.

"My sister," demanded Hillman.

"You come, all, family replied

"Oh! guilt—guilt—my unkindest destroyed one who would have been my guardian angel; but I did not, could not, do an act of personal violence to one so sweet, so undefended; but I hated them—I hated her—and my children—had it not been that surging remorse restrained him from life and light—life and light which he shuddered."

By the intercession of Hillman, he was saved from encountering a world where an executioner and judge would meet him in every human face. The fallen and crushed victim was carried to his chamber, and in the first moments after the terrible scene in the American camp,

"My soul, lead me as it is—so—oh! it is blotted out," exclaimed Brentwood.

"My sister," demanded Hillman.

"You come, all, family replied

"Oh! guilt—guilt—my unkindest destroyed one who would have been my guardian angel; but I did not, could not, do an act of personal violence to one so sweet, so undefended; but I hated them—I hated her—and my children—had it not been that surging remorse restrained him from life and light—life and light which he shuddered."

By the intercession of Hillman, he was saved from encountering a world where an executioner and judge would meet him in every human face. The fallen and crushed victim was carried to his chamber, and in the first moments after the terrible scene in the American camp,

"My soul, lead me as it is—so—oh! it is blotted out," exclaimed Brentwood.

"My sister," demanded Hillman.

"You come, all, family replied

"Oh! guilt—guilt—my unkindest destroyed one who would have been my guardian angel; but I did not, could not, do an act of personal violence to one so sweet, so undefended; but I hated them—I hated her—and my children—had it not been that surging remorse restrained him from life and light—life and light which he shuddered."

By the intercession of Hillman, he was saved from encountering a world where an executioner and judge would meet him in every human face. The fallen and crushed victim was carried to his chamber, and in the first moments after the terrible scene in the American camp,

"My soul, lead me as it is—so—oh! it is blotted out," exclaimed Brentwood.

"My sister," demanded Hillman.

"You come, all, family replied

"Oh! guilt—guilt—my unkindest destroyed one who would have been my guardian angel; but I did not, could not, do an act of personal violence to one so sweet, so undefended; but I hated them—I hated her—and my children—had it not been that surging remorse restrained him from life and light—life and light which he shuddered."

By the intercession of Hillman, he was saved from encountering a world where an executioner and judge would meet him in every human face. The fallen and crushed victim was carried to his chamber, and in the first moments after the terrible scene in the American camp,

"My soul, lead me as it is—so—oh! it is blotted out," exclaimed Brentwood.

"My sister," demanded Hillman.

"You come, all, family replied

"Oh! guilt—guilt—my unkindest destroyed one who would have been my guardian angel; but I did not, could not, do an act of personal violence to one so sweet, so undefended; but I hated them—I hated her—and my children—had it not been that surging remorse restrained him from life and light—life and light which he shuddered."

By the intercession of Hillman, he was saved from encountering a world where an executioner and judge would meet him in every human face. The fallen and crushed victim was carried to his chamber, and in the first moments after the terrible scene in the American camp,

"My soul, lead me as it is—so—oh! it is blotted out," exclaimed Brentwood.

"My sister," demanded Hillman.

"You come, all, family replied

"Oh! guilt—guilt—my unkindest destroyed one who would have been my guardian angel; but I did not, could not, do an act of personal violence to one so sweet, so undefended; but I hated them—I hated her—and my children—had it not been that surging remorse restrained him from life and light—life and light which he shuddered."

By the intercession of Hillman, he was saved from encountering a world where an executioner and judge would meet him in every human face. The fallen and crushed victim was carried to his chamber, and in the first moments after the terrible scene in the American camp,

"My soul, lead me as it is—so—oh! it is blotted out," exclaimed Brentwood.

"My sister," demanded Hillman.

"You come, all, family replied

"Oh! guilt—guilt—my unkindest destroyed one who would have been my guardian angel; but I did not, could not, do an act of personal violence to one so sweet, so undefended; but I hated them—I hated her—and my children—had it not been that surging remorse restrained him from life and light—life and light which he shuddered."

By the intercession of Hillman, he was saved from encountering a world where an executioner and judge would meet him in every human face. The fallen and crushed victim was carried to his chamber, and in the first moments after the terrible scene in the American camp,

"My soul, lead me as it is—so—oh! it is blotted out," exclaimed Brentwood.

"My sister," demanded Hillman.

"You come, all, family replied

"Oh! guilt—guilt—my unkindest destroyed one who would have been my guardian angel; but I did not, could not, do an act of personal violence to one so sweet, so undefended; but I hated them—I hated her—and my children—had it not been that surging remorse restrained him from life and light—life and light which he shuddered."

By the intercession of Hillman, he was saved from encountering a world where an executioner and judge would meet him in every human face. The fallen and crushed victim was carried to his chamber, and in the first moments after the terrible scene in the American camp,

"My soul, lead me as it

VENING POST.

PHILADELPHIA.

Saturday, May 11, 1833.

MIN. M. BROWN continues to be our Agent at N. J.

All persons are cautioned against paying to KING, a gentleman travelling about the country, our subscriptions to the Casket Sunday Post.

A very interesting paper—our paper will not be one of the most expensive now. The papers we have on sale, among books, papers and periodicals, a few sets of green prints. These last are from the hands of Mr. H. H. HAYES—the same whose services we have had to immortalize in other paragraphs. The pens in question are full, and accurate;—and when duly prepared, would be the most expensive note. Mr. H. H. H. is a resident in our market, and his successful industry ought to be properly rewarded by our citizens.

No period in the history of our country, has there exhibited more apparent, and undoubtedly real, energy, than at the present time. Public and private affairs are in the most flourishing condition; and the year may be announced that they will not be equalled. This we believe, is owing, in a very considerable degree, to the press—through which the capitalist of commerce and the arts have been fully exposed to the public; education has placed them on the road to preferment and fortune; and the history of our greatest merchants, mechanics, and politicians, in United States, will conclusively show, that it was mainly by a proper attention to, and use of, the means the press afforded them, that they rose to distinction.

At the present time, these means are multiplied; and blessings of these must be increased in a corresponding ratio. Bearing that the subscribers to paper have made rapid advances with their fellow subscribers, we cannot doubt, that many of them would have no reluctance to extend their claims, even at a little extra expense, worth mentioning among the outgoings of an astute husbandman, artist, or professional man, such, as we would mention, that there are issued by publisher of this journal, both a daily and a tri-weekly paper—the former at eight, and the latter at twelve dollars per annum. Improvements are being effected, which will increase the claims to patronage, which in these papers—the city and country Philadelphia Gazette—have maintained with undiminished force, a period of nearly fifty years. Numerous friends on subscription list have, from time to time, recommended to us the Post semi-weekly; they see now an opportunity, by forwarding only $12, receive a well-earned journal three times in each week, or a daily sheet for $5, which may be paid regularly every evening. We mention these names, not only to satisfy the repeated requests that have been made of us, on this subject, but also to further those desirous of extending their information, with gratifying and acceptable opportunity, fitted equally to their means or desires.

On the 17th of July next, the price of the paper will be $5 a year, excepting to those names may be had in the books. To those old prices will be continued for one year at least. The testimony of an ancient and sober householder, ought to weigh with every one whom his enemies may concern.

SLANDER.—An action for Slander, in the Circuit Court at Sunbury, brought by Peter Ruth and wife against Peter Kurtz, was disposed of last week. Judge Kennedy presiding. The defendant was a brazier in plaintiff's house, two years ago, and in consequence of some misunderstanding between the parties, used impure language, calculated to injure the reputation of plaintiff's wife, whose character previous thereto had been without reproach. The evidence was clear and decisive; and no rebutting testimony was offered by defendant. The jury, after an able charge from the judge, rendered a verdict for plaintiff, amounting damages at $2,000, and costs of suit.

The FAIR in Boston, for the benefit of the Blind to which we made allusion the other day, exceeded all expectation, at the commencement. The ladies contributed Faneuil Hall—the Crucis of Liberty,—into a most magnificent toy shop. According to the Courier, the doors were thrown open, at twelve o'clock, M. on the last day of April, for the purpose of exhibiting the articles previous to the sale, which commenced on the 1st inst.; and so great was the rush of ladies and gentlemen, that over seven hundred rubles were taken for tickets of admission only, before evening. Every thing was arranged with much taste and effect; and the crowd was so great, that a fair view of the articles on the tables could not be had.

A pedestrian of New York—Mr. W. J. Hawke—proposes to walk 3000 miles in 70 days, living on bread and water, and carrying a knapsack weighing 12 pounds. Bets to a large amount have been made on the result of this undertaking. Mr. Hawke, it is said, will commence this test, with a view of ascertaining the effect of exertion upon the body under diet, and upon that he intends lecturing, occasionally, while on his journey. He will start from New York on the 12th inst., proceeding to the principal cities in the New England states; he will afterwards visit Philadelphia, and finally return to New Haven.

The Legislature of Louisiana has passed a new law, relating to the inspection of flour. It provides that every barrel of flour brought into the state, either for sale or exportation, shall contain 100 lbs. net, under a penalty of twelve cents a pound, for every barrel deficient three pounds or less, and twenty cents for every pound deficient over that number. Every barrel is to be branded with the correct name and net weight, under a penalty of fifty cents a barrel; every barrel is to be branded with a penalty of one dollar, by the state inspectors, having power, on suspicion of false branding, to unpack any weight, at the expense of the owner, if found falsely branded, in addition to the penalty. A fine of four dollars is imposed upon every barrel of flour exported, without being properly inspected and branded, by the state inspectors, and all flour found in the state in the construction of the new law, may be seized, and made liable to the penalties and costs. This law is said to have occasioned great dissatisfaction in the west.

We write this paragraph with a new kind of steel pen, prepared by Mr. T. Horner, No. 32 South Fourth street, who informs us that he has just received a fresh supply and great varieties of the article, from England. It makes a fast, strong, black mark; and can be safely recommended. In the present march of improvement, pen may, by means, be brought to write of themselves, without a hand to guide them.

While workmen were engaged, a few days since, in raising the frame of a house in Douglas, Mass., it was struck, when nearly completed, by a sudden gust of wind, and instantly thrown down. There were 26 on the frame at the time, 3 of whom saved themselves from injury by jumping to the ground. All the rest were thrown down among the timber, and were more or less injured; some of them so badly that they are not expected to recover.

Mr. J. S. Skinner, editor of the American Farmer, has furnished for publication a statement, showing that the number of cases in the Police Court of that city, during 1832, exceeded by nearly twenty per cent the number in 1831; and that the increase during the present year, is twenty-five per cent upon the number of cases in the same court in 1832. This shows an increase of crime, in that, of course, more than forty percent in less than two years.

The Report of the State Board of Education, of Massachusetts for the Past and Present, made to the commissioners, on the institution, presents the office of that noble charity, in a very flattering aspect. During the past year only one pupil died in the Institution, making the third death, in a period of twelve years. Generally the children enjoy good health; are educated, and attentive to their studies and labours. Many of the pupils spend their hours of relaxation in mechanical pursuits, two of which—sewing and loom-making—are pursued in the Institution.

Among the instructors some changes have been made, and in filling vacancies, occasioned by resignations, the directors have had some difficulty in presenting those properly qualified. The office of teacher in an institution of this kind, is excessively fatiguing and onerous.—What they accomplish is done in the way of slow, gradual, patient and laborious effort;—and hence the inducements to continue in the employment are not strong. The directors, to obvious future difficulty on this head, are now preparing additional teachers, who will be ready, in a reasonable time, to assume an interest in the great work which it will require.

We have received from Latty, Wait & Co. publishers, of Boston, the first number of a new periodical just introduced in that city, under the title of the People's Magazine. It contains eight half-page plates, and will be published weekly, at one dollar per annum. The popular master is embellished with a variety of beautiful wood engravings; and the reading matter is diversified and interesting.

We have received from Latty, Wait & Co. publishers, of Boston, the first number of a new periodical just introduced in that city, under the title of the People's Magazine. It contains eight half-page plates, and will be published weekly, at one dollar per annum. The popular master is embellished with a variety of beautiful wood engravings; and the reading matter is diversified and interesting.

We have received the first number of a new paper—a large imperial sheet—the publication of which has just commenced in Columbus, (Ohio,) by John Gilbert & Co. It is entitled the Western Hemisphere. The appearance of the Horn is singularly creditable to the mechanical skill of the publishers; and the editorial master is written with gracefulness and spirit. The proprietors have our best desire for their success.

The first number of Greenland's Periodical Library, which we have just received, commences the Life and Trials of Henry Franklin, with copious extracts from his works, illustrative of his plan of education. If the succeeding numbers of the Library equal the one now before us, the work will be well worthy of public support.

Bad News.—MATANAE.—Letters are sent at the 12th, inform us that the Cherokees were making ardent ravages there. Deaths stated at 150 per day, which makes the mortality greater than at Havana, at the most recent period. The population of Matanae is about 10,000.

On the 6th inst. three boys in Bolton (Mass.) dug out and killed 71 black snakes, measuring in all 20 feet in length, which is an average of about five feet each.

A railroad car on descending State street, Albany, a few days since, acquired such velocity, that the driver could not stop the horses, and they entered the round-robin in full gallop. The wheel horse was instantly killed.

The editor of the York Graphic (Pa.) Farmer, who has a manse free over his matrimonial department, reports "four new cases" of wild and deliberate bad news.

The state legislature having, at its recent session, renewed the former grant, the Institution is enabled to receive from Pennsylvania, to support and educate, for the term of five years, fifty pupils. The board of directors call attention to the fact that there are now several vacancies, which they will be happy to fill.

The Pawtucket Manufacturing at the corner of Schuyler, Fifth and Chestnut street, now owned and carried on by Judge HARRISON, is an object of curiosity, and should be one of pride, to our citizens.

The ware that is manufactured at this establishment, is spoken of in the highest terms, by the numerous families who have had it in use.

As it is the only manufactory in the country, devoted to the manufacture of hats, and the various articles of apparel, we can assure you, that the quality of the goods produced is equal to that of any in Europe.

The following picture of the chief premises of Vienna, which we find it necessary to extract, affords a good specimen of the descriptive powers of the "Journal."—The incidents, many of them, are extraordinary interest.

Numerous coats of arms, vehicles of every description, horses and pedestrans, diffused animation over one of the most charming spots of any town can boast. No park or promenade in Europe presents a more interesting scene.

The numerous coffee-houses, to which the numerous inhabitants of Vienna resort for recreation after the labors of the day, and the various amusements offered to the taste, every hour, present the aspect of a gay ballroom.

The numerous coffee-houses, to which the numerous inhabitants of Nashville (Tenn.) have resorted, who have come to the city to recruit their health, are objects of great interest.

The proprietors of Nashville (Tenn.) have undertaken to furnish the people of that city with a weekly newspaper.

The state legislature having, at its recent session, renewed the former grant, the Institution is enabled to receive from Pennsylvania, to support and educate, for the term of five years, fifty pupils. The board of directors call attention to the fact that there are now several vacancies, which they will be happy to fill.

The Pawtucket Manufacturing at the corner of Schuyler, Fifth and Chestnut street, now owned and carried on by Judge HARRISON, is an object of curiosity, and should be one of pride, to our citizens.

The ware that is manufactured at this establishment, is spoken of in the highest terms, by the numerous families who have had it in use.

As it is the only manufactory in the country, devoted to the manufacture of hats, and the various articles of apparel, we can assure you, that the quality of the goods produced is equal to that of any in Europe.

The following picture of the chief premises of Vienna, which we find it necessary to extract, affords a good specimen of the descriptive powers of the "Journal."—The incidents, many of them, are extraordinary interest.

Numerous coats of arms, vehicles of every description, horses and pedestrans, diffused animation over one of the most charming spots of any town can boast. No park or promenade in Europe presents a more interesting scene.

The numerous coffee-houses, to which the numerous inhabitants of Vienna resort for recreation after the labors of the day, and the various amusements offered to the taste, every hour, present the aspect of a gay ballroom.

The following picture of the chief premises of Vienna, which we find it necessary to extract, affords a good specimen of the descriptive powers of the "Journal."—The incidents, many of them, are extraordinary interest.

Numerous coats of arms, vehicles of every description, horses and pedestrans, diffused animation over one of the most charming spots of any town can boast. No park or promenade in Europe presents a more interesting scene.

The numerous coffee-houses, to which the numerous inhabitants of Vienna resort for recreation after the labors of the day, and the various amusements offered to the taste, every hour, present the aspect of a gay ballroom.

The following picture of the chief premises of Vienna, which we find it necessary to extract, affords a good specimen of the descriptive powers of the "Journal."—The incidents, many of them, are extraordinary interest.

Numerous coats of arms, vehicles of every description, horses and pedestrans, diffused animation over one of the most charming spots of any town can boast. No park or promenade in Europe presents a more interesting scene.

The numerous coffee-houses, to which the numerous inhabitants of Vienna resort for recreation after the labors of the day, and the various amusements offered to the taste, every hour, present the aspect of a gay ballroom.

The following picture of the chief premises of Vienna, which we find it necessary to extract, affords a good specimen of the descriptive powers of the "Journal."—The incidents, many of them, are extraordinary interest.

Numerous coats of arms, vehicles of every description, horses and pedestrans, diffused animation over one of the most charming spots of any town can boast. No park or promenade in Europe presents a more interesting scene.

The numerous coffee-houses, to which the numerous inhabitants of Vienna resort for recreation after the labors of the day, and the various amusements offered to the taste, every hour, present the aspect of a gay ballroom.

The following picture of the chief premises of Vienna, which we find it necessary to extract, affords a good specimen of the descriptive powers of the "Journal."—The incidents, many of them, are extraordinary interest.

Numerous coats of arms, vehicles of every description, horses and pedestrans, diffused animation over one of the most charming spots of any town can boast. No park or promenade in Europe presents a more interesting scene.

The numerous coffee-houses, to which the numerous inhabitants of Vienna resort for recreation after the labors of the day, and the various amusements offered to the taste, every hour, present the aspect of a gay ballroom.

The following picture of the chief premises of Vienna, which we find it necessary to extract, affords a good specimen of the descriptive powers of the "Journal."—The incidents, many of them, are extraordinary interest.

Numerous coats of arms, vehicles of every description, horses and pedestrans, diffused animation over one of the most charming spots of any town can boast. No park or promenade in Europe presents a more interesting scene.

The numerous coffee-houses, to which the numerous inhabitants of Vienna resort for recreation after the labors of the day, and the various amusements offered to the taste, every hour, present the aspect of a gay ballroom.

The following picture of the chief premises of Vienna, which we find it necessary to extract, affords a good specimen of the descriptive powers of the "Journal."—The incidents, many of them, are extraordinary interest.

Numerous coats of arms, vehicles of every description, horses and pedestrans, diffused animation over one of the most charming spots of any town can boast. No park or promenade in Europe presents a more interesting scene.

The numerous coffee-houses, to which the numerous inhabitants of Vienna resort for recreation after the labors of the day, and the various amusements offered to the taste, every hour, present the aspect of a gay ballroom.

The following picture of the chief premises of Vienna, which we find it necessary to extract, affords a good specimen of the descriptive powers of the "Journal."—The incidents, many of them, are extraordinary interest.

Numerous coats of arms, vehicles of every description, horses and pedestrans, diffused animation over one of the most charming spots of any town can boast. No park or promenade in Europe presents a more interesting scene.

The numerous coffee-houses, to which the numerous inhabitants of Vienna resort for recreation after the labors of the day, and the various amusements offered to the taste, every hour, present the aspect of a gay ballroom.

The following picture of the chief premises of Vienna, which we find it necessary to extract, affords a good specimen of the descriptive powers of the "Journal."—The incidents, many of them, are extraordinary interest.

Numerous coats of arms, vehicles of every description, horses and pedestrans, diffused animation over one of the most charming spots of any town can boast. No park or promenade in Europe presents a more interesting scene.

The numerous coffee-houses, to which the numerous inhabitants of Vienna resort for recreation after the labors of the day, and the various amusements offered to the taste, every hour, present the aspect of a gay ballroom.

The following picture of the chief premises of Vienna, which we find it necessary to extract, affords a good specimen of the descriptive powers of the "Journal."—The incidents, many of them, are extraordinary interest.

Numerous coats of arms, vehicles of every description, horses and pedestrans, diffused animation over one of the most charming spots of any town can boast. No park or promenade in Europe presents a more interesting scene.

The numerous coffee-houses, to which the numerous inhabitants of Vienna resort for recreation after the labors of the day, and the various amusements offered to the taste, every hour, present the aspect of a gay ballroom.

The following picture of the chief premises of Vienna, which we find it necessary to extract, affords a good specimen of the descriptive powers of the "Journal."—The incidents, many of them, are extraordinary interest.

Numerous coats of arms, vehicles of every description, horses and pedestrans, diffused animation over one of the most charming spots of any town can boast. No park or promenade in Europe presents a more interesting scene.

The numerous coffee-houses, to which the numerous inhabitants of Vienna resort for recreation after the labors of the day, and the various amusements offered to the taste, every hour, present the aspect of a gay ballroom.

The following picture of the chief premises of Vienna, which we find it necessary to extract, affords a good specimen of the descriptive powers of the "Journal."—The incidents, many of them, are extraordinary interest.

Numerous coats of arms, vehicles of every description, horses and pedestrans, diffused animation over one of the most charming spots of any town can boast. No park or promenade in Europe presents a more interesting scene.

The numerous coffee-houses, to which the numerous inhabitants of Vienna resort for recreation after the labors of the day, and the various amusements offered to the taste, every hour, present the aspect of a gay ballroom.

The following picture of the chief premises of Vienna, which we find it necessary to extract, affords a good specimen of the descriptive powers of the "Journal."—The incidents, many of them, are extraordinary interest.

Numerous coats of arms, vehicles of every description, horses and pedestrans, diffused animation over one of the most charming spots of any town can boast. No park or promenade in Europe presents a more interesting scene.

The numerous coffee-houses, to which the numerous inhabitants of Vienna resort for recreation after the labors of the day, and the various amusements offered to the taste, every hour, present the aspect of a gay ballroom.

The following picture of the chief premises of Vienna, which we find it necessary to extract, affords a good specimen of the descriptive powers of the "Journal."—The incidents, many of them, are extraordinary interest.

Numerous coats of arms, vehicles of every description, horses and pedestrans, diffused animation over one of the most charming spots of any town can boast. No park or promenade in Europe presents a more interesting scene.

The numerous coffee-houses, to which the numerous inhabitants of Vienna resort for recreation after the labors of the day, and the various amusements offered to the taste, every hour, present the aspect of a gay ballroom.

The following picture of the chief premises of Vienna, which we find it necessary to extract, affords a good specimen of the descriptive powers of the "Journal."—The incidents, many of them, are extraordinary interest.

Numerous coats of arms, vehicles of every description, horses and pedestrans, diffused animation over one of the most charming spots of any town can boast. No park or promenade in Europe presents a more interesting scene.

The numerous coffee-houses, to which the numerous inhabitants of Vienna resort for recreation after the labors of the day, and the various amusements offered to the taste, every hour, present the aspect of a gay ballroom.

The following picture of the chief premises of Vienna, which we

